

read this file and i want the improved version of this song for heart touching popularity and easy to viral lyrics and also include the video prompts for each lyrics songs direction for a girl character as a main character.

I read the file. The strongest concept is already clear: a young woman attends the wedding of the man she once loved, remembers why she let him go, and finally chooses herself. Below is an improved, more singable version with a shorter, repeatable viral hook and a complete girl-led video direction. The lyrics preserve the emotional twist while making the wording easier to remember and perform. `⌘cite⌘file:1⌘`

Someone Else's Forever

Song direction

- Genre: Cinematic Hindi/English-inspired pop ballad with modern R&B and Bollywood-pop percussion.
- Tempo: 96 BPM, 4/4.
- Key: F# minor; lift the final chorus toward A major if your music generator supports modulation.
- Lead vocal: Young female vocalist, intimate and breathy in the verses, emotional and powerful in the chorus.
- Instrumentation: Piano, warm bass, atmospheric synths, muted electric guitar, cinematic strings, finger snaps, soft handclaps, restrained 808s, and a final anthemic drum lift.
- Mood arc: Composed heartbreak → nostalgia → wedding-day pain → emotional confrontation → dignity and self-worth.
- Main visual character: Mahima, a young woman in her early twenties with expressive dark eyes, long dark wavy hair, and a graceful, recognisable appearance. Her signature visual element is a deep blue dress or sari-inspired gown—the colour he once said belonged to her.
- Male character: Aarav, her former love. Keep him visually consistent with dark wavy hair, a charcoal suit, a simple silver watch, and a small scar above his right eyebrow.
- Bride: Keep her kind and dignified rather than villainous. The emotional conflict is about timing and sacrifice, not betrayal.

Improved lyrics

[intro]

I wore the colour you once said was mine,
Sat in the third row, three seats from the aisle.
The band played the song we used to hum,
I smiled like a stranger—like we were never one.

Your eyes found mine beneath the wedding lights,
For one small second, we were seventeen that night.
Then she took your hand, and the whole room turned blue,
I learned how forever can still belong to you.

[verse]

We were seventeen, with the whole sky to steal,
Carved our names where the old bridge met the field.
You said, “One day, they’ll understand us too,”
I said, “I’ll wait”—and I believed I would for you.

Then the years grew heavy, your father fell ill,
There was a house and a family waiting still.
You came to me crying; I already knew,
I held your face and said, “Go—I’ll be fine without you.”

[pre-chorus]

That was the bravest lie I ever told,
Watching you leave with my heart in your hold.
Some love is too bright to survive in the light,
Some love is a candle you carry at night.

[chorus]

You’re someone else’s forever now,
And I’m still learning to breathe somehow.
I taught your hands how to hold her tight,
I taught your eyes how to love her right.

So dance with your forever, I’ll clap along,
I’ll be the girl who loved you in a song.
You’re someone else’s forever now,
And I’m still learning to breathe somehow.

[post-chorus]

Someone else’s forever,
Someone else’s forever.
I loved you first, but I let you go.
Some hearts stay—some hearts let go.

[verse]

Your mother hugged me, said, “You’re still our girl,”

While I hid a lifetime beneath a little smile.
The bride looked kind beneath her veil of white,
She didn't know she was standing in my goodbye.

You kept looking past her to the third-row seat,
Where I held my heart together underneath.
I wanted to run, but I stayed in place,
Learning how to lose you with a smile upon my face.

[pre-chorus]

Don't look at me—you'll give us away,
Say your vows and mean every word you say.
I'm only a guest, I'm only a friend,
I'm only the girl on the wrong side of the end.

[chorus]

You're someone else's forever now,
And I'm still learning to breathe somehow.
I taught your hands how to hold her tight,
I taught your eyes how to love her right.

So dance with your forever, I'll clap along,
I'll be the girl who loved you in a song.
You're someone else's forever now,
And I'm still learning to breathe somehow.

[post-chorus]

Someone else's forever,
Someone else's forever.
I loved you first, but I let you go.
Some hearts stay—some hearts let go.

[instrumental]

(Piano motif, rain ambience, muted guitar, finger snaps, rising strings, and a short wordless female vocal melody.)

[bridge]

You found me in the rain by the garden door,
Said, "Mahima, wait—I can't do this anymore."
You said, "One word, and I'll leave tonight.
One word, and I'll choose our unfinished life."

I could have said, "Run." I could have said, "Stay."
I could have pulled your future from her hands away.
But I saw your mother smiling through her tears,
And the boy I loved had finally made it here.

So I touched your face like I did before,
Then I sent you gently through that garden door.

Be the man I loved; be honest and true—
If love means anything, let it be good to you.

And if you ever ask what love looks like,
It's a girl at your wedding letting you go twice.

[final chorus]

You're someone else's forever now,
But I'm finally learning to breathe somehow.
I taught your hands how to hold her tight,
Now I'm teaching my heart to survive the night.

So dance with your forever, I'll walk alone,
I'll take every broken piece of me home.
You're someone else's forever now,
But I'm finally learning to breathe somehow.

I gave you my heart, then I gave you away,
And I found my own heart waiting for me today.
Someone else's forever,
No longer my goodbye.
You were the love I lost—
I am the life I find.

[post-chorus]

Someone else's forever,
Someone else's forever.
I loved you first, but I choose me now.
I loved you once, but I'm breathing now.

[outro]

I wore the colour you once said was mine,
I'll wash it clean in the morning light.
Someone else's forever,
Someone else's vow.

You were someone else's forever—
And I'm finally mine now.

Video production concept

Visual style

Use a cinematic romantic-drama style with realistic faces, natural skin texture, controlled camera movement, soft rain, shallow depth of field, and a blue-and-gold colour palette.

- Past memories: Warm amber, sun flare, handheld camera, soft film grain.

- Wedding present: Cool blue shadows, elegant golden practical lights, composed camera movement.
- Rain confrontation: Deep blue, silver reflections, slow dolly shots, emotional close-ups.
- Final release: Pale sunrise, warm natural light, wider compositions, gentle forward camera movement.

The video should be built from short shots rather than one continuous generation. Generate a clean reference image for Mahima, Aarav, and the bride first, then reuse those references with the same seed, character adapter, LoRA, or image-reference workflow in every shot.

Character bible prompt

Use this description in every relevant generation prompt:

Mahima:

“Same female protagonist Mahima, young South Asian woman in her early twenties, expressive dark brown eyes, oval face, warm medium-brown skin, long dark wavy hair, small silver earrings, graceful natural features, emotionally restrained expression, realistic cinematic photography, consistent identity, natural skin texture.”

Aarav:

“Same male protagonist Aarav, young South Asian man in his mid-twenties, dark wavy hair, warm brown eyes, medium-brown skin, lean build, charcoal suit in present-day scenes, simple silver watch, small scar above the right eyebrow, realistic cinematic photography, consistent identity.”

Bride:

“Same bride, young South Asian woman in her mid-twenties, kind expressive eyes, elegant ivory wedding outfit, understated jewellery, gentle smile, dignified and warm presence, realistic cinematic photography.”

Always add: “no text, no subtitles, no watermark, no extra fingers, no duplicate people, stable facial identity.”

Shot-by-shot video prompts

The prompts below are designed as image-to-video prompts. First create a strong keyframe, then animate it with subtle movement. Keep most shots between 4 and 8 seconds.

Intro

Shot 1 — Wedding arrival

Lyrics: “I wore the colour you once said was mine”

Prompt:

“Cinematic establishing shot of an elegant countryside wedding estate at blue hour, warm golden lights glowing through tall windows, light rain beginning, Mahima arriving alone in a deep blue flowing dress, holding a small black clutch, long dark wavy hair moving gently in the wind, slow camera push-in, romantic heartbreak atmosphere, realistic film photography, 35mm lens.”

Shot 2 — Third row

Lyrics: “Sat in the third row, three seats from the aisle”

Prompt:

“Interior wedding ceremony, Mahima seated alone in the third row, three seats from the aisle, deep blue dress contrasting with ivory flowers and warm candlelight, guests softly blurred in foreground, she sits upright and composed while hiding sadness, slow lateral camera movement, cinematic shallow depth of field.”

Shot 3 — The familiar song

Lyrics: “The band played the song we used to hum”

Prompt:

“Close-up of Mahima listening to a live wedding band, soft piano and guitar players blurred behind her, her eyes glistening but she does not cry, warm lights reflected in her eyes, subtle breathing, slow push-in, intimate cinematic close-up.”

Shot 4 — First eye contact

Lyrics: “Your eyes found mine beneath the wedding lights”

Prompt:

“Over-the-shoulder shot from behind Mahima toward Aarav standing at the altar in a charcoal suit, his eyes suddenly meeting hers across the wedding guests, bride beside him softly out of focus, golden lights and cool shadows, restrained shock, slow rack focus from bride to Aarav.”

Verse 1: Memory

Shot 5 — Seventeen

Lyrics: “We were seventeen, with the whole sky to steal”

Prompt:

“Warm summer memory, teenage Mahima and teenage Aarav running through a golden field beneath a huge sunset sky, laughing freely, youthful romantic energy, handheld 35mm camera, glowing sun flare, soft nostalgic film grain.”

Shot 6 — Bridge carving

Lyrics: “Carved our names where the old bridge met the field”

Prompt:

“Close-up of young Mahima and Aarav carving their initials into the wooden railing of an old railway bridge, hands touching, golden grass moving in the wind, intimate youthful romance, slow handheld camera movement, warm amber colour grade.”

Shot 7 — The promise

Lyrics: “You said, ‘One day, they’ll understand us too”

Prompt:

“Two young lovers sitting on an old railway bridge at sunset, Aarav speaking hopefully while Mahima looks at him with complete trust, distant railway line and glowing sky behind them, gentle breeze moving her hair, slow orbiting camera, emotional cinematic realism.”

Shot 8 — Illness and goodbye

Lyrics: “There was a house and a family waiting still”

Prompt:

“Present-day memory inside a modest family home, Aarav sitting distressed near his ill father’s bedroom door, Mahima standing beside him with quiet understanding, muted evening light, emotional but dignified, slow static camera, realistic drama film.”

Shot 9 — Letting him go

Lyrics: “I held your face and said, ‘Go—I’ll be fine without you”

Prompt:

“Emotional close-up of Mahima holding Aarav’s face with both hands, tears held back, she forces a brave smile and gently tells him to go, he is devastated, soft window light, shallow depth of field, almost no camera movement, realistic facial emotion.”

Pre-chorus

Shot 10 — Walking away

Lyrics: “Watching you leave with my heart in your hold”

Prompt:

“Rear tracking shot of Aarav walking away down a quiet street while Mahima remains alone in the doorway, evening rain beginning, her hand slowly falling from the doorframe, long emotional silence, cinematic blue-and-amber lighting.”

Shot 11 — Candle metaphor

Lyrics: “Some love is a candle you carry at night”

Prompt:

“Poetic close-up of Mahima walking alone through a dark hallway carrying a small candle protected by both hands, her face illuminated by warm flame, background fading into blue darkness, gentle camera movement, symbolic cinematic music-video imagery.”

Chorus

Shot 12 — Wedding celebration

Lyrics: “So dance with your forever, I’ll clap along”

Prompt:

“Wedding guests dancing under warm string lights, Mahima clapping softly from the edge of the room while trying to smile, Aarav and the bride dancing in the background, slow circular camera movement, beautiful celebration with visible emotional distance.”

Shot 13 — The knife line

Lyrics: “I taught your hands how to hold her tight”

Prompt:

“Extreme close-up of Aarav’s hands gently holding the bride’s hands during the wedding dance, Mahima visible as a soft reflection in a glass window behind them, emotional symbolism, slow motion, elegant warm lighting, cinematic realism.”

Shot 14 — Back of the room

Lyrics: “I’ll be the girl who loved you in a song”

Prompt:

“Wide shot from the back of a wedding hall, Mahima standing alone near the doorway while everyone else celebrates, warm lights forming a halo around the dancing couple, she remains in cool blue shadow, slow pull-back camera, bittersweet cinematic composition.”

Shot 15 — Viral hook close-up

Lyrics: “You’re someone else’s forever now”

Prompt:

“Direct cinematic close-up of Mahima looking toward the altar, a single tear finally moving down her cheek, she gives a small accepting smile instead of breaking, wedding lights reflected in her eyes, slow gentle push-in, realistic emotional performance.”

Post-chorus

Shot 16 — Repeating memory

Lyrics: “I loved you first, but I let you go”

Prompt:

“Match-cut style sequence showing young Mahima releasing Aarav’s hand in the sunset memory, transitioning to present-day Mahima releasing the edge of her chair at the wedding, warm memory transforming into cool present, smooth cinematic dissolve.”

Verse 2

Shot 17 — His mother

Lyrics: “Your mother hugged me, said, ‘You’re still our girl’”

Prompt:

“Aarav’s mother warmly hugging Mahima at the wedding reception, Mahima smiling politely while hiding overwhelming sadness, floral decorations and guests blurred behind them, slow close camera movement, natural emotional acting, elegant wedding realism.”

Shot 18 — The bride

Lyrics: “The bride looked kind beneath her veil of white”

Prompt:

“Close-up of the kind bride smiling softly beneath a delicate ivory veil, no villainous expression, warm natural light, Mahima watching her from the background with conflicted compassion, shallow depth of field, slow rack focus between the two women.”

Shot 19 — Third-row pain

Lyrics: “Where I held my heart together underneath”

Prompt:

“Medium close-up of Mahima seated in the third row, fingers tightly clasped in her lap, deep blue fabric trembling slightly, she silently controls her breathing while the wedding ceremony continues, gentle handheld camera, cool shadows and warm highlights.”

Shot 20 — His repeated glance

Lyrics: “You kept looking past her to the third-row seat”

Prompt:

“Over-the-shoulder shot behind the bride as Aarav looks past her toward Mahima, his expression filled with regret and conflict, bride remains calm and unaware, wedding guests softly blurred, slow focus pull toward Mahima.”

Pre-chorus 2

Shot 21 — Don’t look at me

Lyrics: “Don’t look at me—you’ll give us away”

Prompt:

“Close-up of Mahima lowering her eyes as Aarav looks toward her, she subtly shakes her head and silently mouths ‘don’t,’ crowded wedding hall around them, tension hidden beneath ceremony, controlled camera push-in.”

Shot 22 — The wrong side

Lyrics: “I’m only the girl on the wrong side of the end”

Prompt:

“Symbolic wide shot of Mahima standing on one side of a long wedding hallway while Aarav stands far away on the other side, guests pass between them like moving shadows, cool blue light around Mahima, golden light around Aarav, slow symmetrical camera movement.”

Instrumental

Shot 23 — Memory montage

Prompt:

“Dreamlike montage of Mahima and Aarav’s memories: running across a field, laughing beneath the railway bridge, sharing headphones on a train platform, hands almost touching, warm golden colour, gentle motion blur, soft film grain, lyrical music-video pacing.”

Shot 24 — Present-day isolation

Prompt:

“Mahima alone in a quiet side room at the wedding, looking at an old photograph of herself and Aarav, distant celebration lights flickering through glass doors, she slowly turns the photograph face down, restrained emotion, slow dolly backward.”

Bridge

Shot 25 — Rain at the garden door

Lyrics: “You found me in the rain by the garden door”

Prompt:

“Nighttime wedding estate garden in heavy rain, Mahima standing beneath a glass garden doorway in her deep blue dress, Aarav running toward her in a soaked charcoal suit, dramatic backlight from the reception hall, slow-motion rain, cinematic romantic drama.”

Shot 26 — He says her name

Lyrics: “Said, ‘Mahima, wait—I can’t do this anymore’”

Prompt:

“Intense close-up of Aarav standing in the rain, saying Mahima’s name with desperation, wet hair, tears blending with rain, the wedding reception glowing behind him through the glass, slow handheld push-in, realistic emotional performance.”

Shot 27 — The impossible choice

Lyrics: “One word, and I’ll leave tonight”

Prompt:

“Two-shot of Mahima and Aarav facing each other under the garden doorway, both crying quietly, his hand reaching toward hers but stopping before touching, rain between them, deep blue lighting, slow circular camera movement, tragic romantic tension.”

Shot 28 — Her decision

Lyrics: “But I saw your mother smiling through her tears”

Prompt:

“Close-up of Mahima looking through the glass door toward Aarav’s mother smiling proudly inside the wedding hall, bride waiting near the altar, Mahima’s expression changes from longing to heartbreaking clarity, slow rack focus, warm interior versus cool rain exterior.”

Shot 29 — Letting go twice

Lyrics: “It’s a girl at your wedding letting you go twice”

Prompt:

“Mahima gently places one hand against Aarav’s chest, gives him a tearful but peaceful smile, then slowly steps backward into the rain while he remains frozen, she turns away without looking back, elegant slow dolly shot, powerful emotional release.”

Final chorus

Shot 30 — Walking alone

Lyrics: “But I’m finally learning to breathe somehow”

Prompt:

“Mahima walking alone through the rain outside the wedding estate, removing one hairpin and letting her long hair fall naturally, she takes a deep breath, camera moves backward in front of her, blue night slowly beginning to brighten.”

Shot 31 — Choosing herself

Lyrics: “Now I’m teaching my heart to survive the night”

Prompt:

“Mahima sitting alone in the back seat of a vintage car, rain sliding across the window, she looks at her reflection and gently wipes away her tears, then smiles with quiet strength, soft dashboard light, slow intimate close-up.”

Shot 32 — Carrying her heart home

Lyrics: “I gave you my heart, then I gave you away”

Prompt:

“Wide shot of Mahima leaving the wedding estate through an open gate, blue dress moving in the rain, distant wedding lights behind her, she walks toward the road and dawn beyond it, slow crane upward, cinematic sense of freedom.”

Shot 33 — Final hook

Lyrics: “You’re someone else’s forever now / But I’m finally mine now”

Prompt:

“Sunrise on a quiet city street, Mahima walking toward golden morning light, rainwater shining on the pavement, she turns once toward the distant wedding estate, then faces forward with a peaceful confident smile, slow forward tracking shot, warm hopeful cinematic ending.”

Outro

Shot 34 — Washing the colour

Lyrics: “I’ll wash it clean in the morning light”

Prompt:

“Morning interior, Mahima standing before a mirror in soft sunlight, removing the deep blue shawl from her shoulders and placing it beside a window, no sadness in her expression, only calm acceptance, gentle camera pan, natural light.”

Shot 35 — Final image

Lyrics: “And I’m finally mine now”

Prompt:

“Final wide cinematic shot of Mahima walking alone beneath trees in warm sunrise light, wind moving her hair and dress, the camera slowly pulls away as she becomes smaller but more free, hopeful romantic-drama ending, soft golden lens flare, no text.”

Production workflow

1. Lock the characters

Create a character sheet for each person with:

- Front portrait.
- Three-quarter portrait.
- Side profile.
- Full-body reference.

- Neutral expression and emotional expression.
- Wedding outfit and casual-memory outfit.

For Mahima, keep the hairstyle, face shape, earrings, and blue colour consistent. For Aarav, keep the eyebrow scar, hairstyle, watch, and suit consistent. Use the same reference image or character LoRA in every shot.

2. Create keyframes before videos

Do not begin by generating long videos. Generate one strong still image for each shot, approve the face, hands, costume, and composition, then animate the approved frame.

For local ComfyUI:

- Use your strongest realistic checkpoint.
- Use IP-Adapter or a character LoRA for Mahima.
- Use a second reference or LoRA for Aarav.
- Add ControlNet OpenPose for walking, embracing, and confrontation shots.
- Add Depth or SoftEdge ControlNet for stable cinematic compositions.
- Generate at 16:9 first for YouTube.
- Create a separate 9:16 crop or alternate composition for Shorts and Reels.

3. Animate conservatively

Use subtle motion for emotional close-ups:

- Slow push-in.
- Hair and dress movement.
- Rain movement.
- Eye and breathing motion.
- Gentle hand movement.

Avoid asking the model to create complex choreography, long walks, kissing, crowd interaction, or rapid hand gestures in one clip. Break those actions into separate 3–6 second shots.

4. Edit to the song

Import the final WAV into DaVinci Resolve or another editor. Add markers at:

- The first vocal entrance.
- Each chorus.
- The instrumental break.
- The first word “Mahima.”
- The line “You’re someone else’s forever now.”

- The final “I’m finally mine now.”

Use the chorus shots repeatedly but change the angle, lighting, or emotional expression each time. The first chorus should show pain; the final chorus should show release.

5. Make the hook viral

Create a separate 15–20 second vertical teaser around:

“You’re someone else’s forever now,
But I’m finally learning to breathe somehow.”

Suggested teaser structure:

1. Mahima seated at the wedding.
2. Aarav looking toward her.
3. Rain confrontation.
4. Mahima walking away.
5. Final close-up: “I’m finally mine now.”

Add clean on-screen lyrics only during the hook, with large readable text and high contrast. Keep the full music video visually cinematic, but make the teaser immediately understandable within the first two seconds.

6. Quality-control checklist

Before final export, check:

- Mahima’s face remains recognisable in every shot.
- Aarav’s scar and watch remain consistent.
- No duplicated guests or distorted hands.
- No unexplained costume changes.
- The bride remains sympathetic.
- The emotional twist is clear without dialogue.
- The final chorus visibly changes from grief to freedom.
- Cuts land on musical phrases rather than random timestamps.
- Rain, lighting, grain, and colour grading match across shots.
- Lyrics on screen contain no spelling errors.

This version gives you a complete emotional arc: she attends the wedding, relives the relationship, is offered one final escape, refuses to destroy another person’s life, and leaves with her identity intact.
